Fund Commentary

The KSE-100 index posted a decline of 0.16% during the month of April, 2018. Initial excitement in the market on account of the announcement of amnesty scheme subsided as questions arose regarding its sustainability following comments by the opposition while the Supreme Court also hinted regarding review of the scheme. A sell-off of index heavyweight OGDC by a foreign investor at a price much lower than the market price also had a bearing on the market return. Positive newsflow regarding measures to be announced in the budget however, helped sustain investor interest in the market.

On the Money Market front, market yields remained stable with SBP keeping its policy rate unchanged in the MPM announced in March, 2018.
